5. Is there a cost for this program?

Yes, there is a cost for this program—but here's why it exists.

Research shows that unmanaged care leads to $138 to $236 billion in avoidable costs every year—costs that fall heavily on families. That's an average of $9,137 per person, per year, due to things like medication errors, longer hospital stays, unnecessary emergency room visits, and miscommunications that could have been prevented. Those mistakes don't just drain your wallet—they disrupt families, increase stress, and take away your peace of mind.

This program exists to stop that from happening.

It gives you the tools, skills, and knowledge to prevent those breakdowns in care—and protect what matters most: your time, your health, your money, and your family's well-being.
